Passenger Rail Service Update

Passenger rail service between the Laguna Niguel/Mission Viejo and Oceanside stations has been indefinitely suspended due to boulders and debris falling onto the tracks caused by a landslide damaging the Mariposa Trail Bridge in San Clemente. The tracks are also used for Amtrak's Pacific Surfliner service which has also been suspended, Amtrak announced. Surfliner passengers are being offered bus connections between Irvine and Oceanside for alternative travel during the closure.

There is currently no timeline as to when the tracks will reopen or when rail service will resume. Our office is actively working with State Officials, the OCTA and the City of San Clemente as we prepare for a press conference later today! More information will follow!
